What is most important to you about this session? Why are you choosing to get professional portraiture now, at this particular point in time?

Most people assume a family portrait is simply posing and smiling at the camera. But we'd love to capture something more storytelling and "real" to show how you feel about each other. In addition to the standard poses smiling at the camera, do you want to try something more creative?

Imagine many years from now. What memories and feelings would you want this portrait to portray?

What are the most important elements for us to capture in this portrait?

Are you a more "huggy" family, or more separate and independent? Young families can be portrayed connected, touching, and clinging to one another. Older families are often portrayed as together, yet self-sufficient. Which would you feel is more appropriate for your portraits?

Please describe other specific visual ideas you envision, such as "close-ups" or "black and white" etc.

Describe any special circumstances or needs of which we should be aware.

Where in your home do you plan on hanging your portrait? What are the colors in the room? What size is the wall, and what do you feel would be an appropriate size for a portrait to hang there?
